CARD OF THANKS

We take this means of expressing our heartfelt thanks to our many friends who tried our sympathy to share with the recent illness and death of our beloved wife and mother, Flora Lykins. Especially do we thank the donors of those beautiful flowers, also to the ministers and choir for their consoling words and nice hymns.

"One who was a part of everything that's nearest and dearest to my heart, the one who brought me happiness and contentment too, and made my life a pleasure, that one dear wife who was my earthly treasure.

Should all my friends desert me, I wouldn't worry, fret, or pout; As long as I had dear mother and wife.

I had nothing to worry about. Though I lose all, and still had her, I should not grieve a minute; To us she was worth the entire world.

And everything that's in sleep. Rest, mother, rest, in quiet sleep. While friends in sorrow o'er thee weep."

AIR WAR RAGES

Nazi air raids on the British Isles became more serious this week, with hundreds of planes taking part in the largest air battle in history.

As usual, each side claimed that most of the losses were on the other side. It is generally thought that these raids badly damaging British defenses, are counted on by Hitler to prepare the way for an invasion of England, which may take place any day now.

A WORTHWHILE PROJECT

Ranking close to tops of the many really worthwhile WPA projects throughout the nation is the West Liberty municipal water works project.

The town has for some years operated a water supply system which was woefully inadequate and at the same time ruinously expensive to operate.

Our town board of trustees made application to the WPA for assistance in building a modern water system which it is felt will provide the town with its water requirements for many years to come.

The system will include low lift station, filtration plant, storage reservoir, and more than five miles of pipe ranging from six inches to two inches in diameter.

Work on this project was started last year and was suspended during the winter. Work is now being rushed and it is hoped will be completed before another winter makes work difficult or impossible.

The whole cost of the project as figured by the engineers who designed the system will be $80,000. Of this amount the WPA will contribute in labor and material $42,000. This will be an outright grant to the town and not a dollar of it will ever have to be paid to the WPA.

The balance of the cost, $38,000, the town has to put up and is doing so with an issue of revenue bonds against the system.

The project superintendent on this job is Callie S. Hahn who has had considerable experience, not only in this kind of work, but also in dealing with men. We have heard compliments for the efficiency of the work by the men on this job during the recent extremely hot weather.

We hope to be able to serve Licking river water with our next Christmas dinner.

NOTES & COMMENTS

Most committee meetings represent a waste of time.

In case you disagree with our editorials, it's all right with us.

"It is said" is becoming about as famous as the old "they say."

When you touch the money nerve you get down to the real person.

You can have many things if you are willing to be patient about them.

A woman is busy when she hasn't time to attend a party, or a bridge game.

The greatest problem of 1940, to some minds, is how to make more fish bite.

The faults of young people are largely attributable to the faults of old people.

One good thing about the advice that editors pass out, nobody has to take it.

If a democracy is to succeed the minority must accept the decision of the majority.

The finest sermons are seen, not heard; they live in the lives of men and women.

Some people think they become experts on any subject if they read a book about it.

Misrepresentation flourishes because there are fools who believe anything they hear.

The trade-at-home program will work only when it has the support of buyers and sellers.

The merchants of West Liberty who want your business ask for it by advertising.

In the present world a volunteer system is about as out of date as the bow and arrow.

An individual who is lost in the past is like a swimmer who has gone under for the third time.

Borrowers always expect a windfall that will pay up their debts, but the air remains calm.

A political campaign is like a horse race and everybody has his own idea as to the winner.

Congress is getting ready to spend about ten billion dollars in supporting what we call isolation.

Preachers should beware of profits, popularity, politics, prestige, and platitudes, lest they go astray.

The man whose opinion is worthless always wants to be the spokesman of some kind of association.

Have you done anything to beautify West Liberty in 1940, or are you waiting on somebody else to do it all?

The persons who thought there would be no war a year ago, now think that the United States needs no army.

There are residents of West Liberty who have been away on vacation, and are now anxious for a rest at home.

Swimming is a fine exercise but even a good swimmer should exercise care in the water, if he wants to live long.

The modern scientist has about reached the place where he can make anything out of anything, if you get the idea.

The Japanese are evidently determined to convince the western powers that they have no rights in the far east.

The people of the world are divided into two classes: (1) those who get the publicity they desire and (2) those who do not.

Americanism: The belief that a two weeks' trip to a foreign country makes an individual well informed about foreign affairs.

It is remarkable, but true, that most individuals who inherit money think that nature has set them apart from the common herd.

There are people in the United States who still believe that nobody would ever dare attack this country, even if we didn't have policemen.

The people in Morgan county are the greatest asset that we have, and yet there are many of them who suffer because of a lack of opportunity.

WASHINGTON NOTES

Active Flying
The army air corps will begin arctic weather flying tests in Alaska in November, using the new $7,000,000 test station at Fairbanks.

Farm Credit
Various agencies of the farm credit administration expended $313,454,000 credit to the farmers during the first half of the current year.

Alaskan Defenses
Alaskan defenses, opposite Russian territory, are aided by the navy for work upon air stations at Kodiak and Unalaska Islands. More than $4,000,000 is involved.

Employment
In the first half of 1940, public employment offices placed 1,500,000 workers in private industry, according to Paul V. McNutt, federal security administrator.

First Five
Only five cities in the United States have populations in excess of 1,000,000 people, according to the 1940 count. In order, they are: New York, 7,380,259; Chicago, 3,384,566; Philadelphia, 1,935,086; Detroit, 1,618,549; and Los Angeles, 1,496,792.

Pilots
Airplane pilots' certificates are held by 41,000 individuals in this country, according to Donald H. Connelly, administrator of civil aeronautics. This represents a gain of about 15,000 in the last year. California, with 5,826 pilots, ranks first among the states.

Pneumonia Vaccine
Experiments on 115,000 CCC enrollees, during the past three years, indicate the development of a vaccine which has value as a preventative of pneumonia. If tentative results are borne out by further experience, the vaccine will be the first preventive of pneumonia ever developed.

For the Draft
General George C. Marshall, chief of staff, says that any further delay in mobilizing the national guard for duty and in setting up some form of selective service will seriously jeopardize the nation's preparedness program "at a time which may be the most critical in the history of this country."

In "Safe" Areas
In order to locate future munitions plants in "safe" areas, the war department has set up five separate geographic production regions between the Allegheny and Rocky Mountains. A chain of about sixty plants for the manufacture of munitions, to cost about $700,000,000, is contemplated.

NYA
A registration designed to permit additional young people to qualify for national youth administration work permits certification if the youth is in need of "employment, work experience, and training." Heretofore, it has been necessary to consider the needs of the family budget before certifying the youth.

Discharged
More than 429 WPA workers have been discharged because they refused to sign affidavits that they are not members of the Communist party or Nazi Bund. The current relief appropriation act requires such an affidavit. Louisiana and New York had the largest number of persons, 49, refusing to sign the pledge. Only 429 out of 1,650,000 workers failed to sign the affidavit.

"Pick-Up" Air Mail
Three new pick-up air mail routes will begin this month, serving fifty small cities in New York, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, and Delaware. The routes will fan out from Pittsburgh as a hub to Jamestown, New York, Philadelphia, and Huntington, West Virginia. Non-stop planes will pick up by grab-hook airmail sacks from the communities and drop sacks for the centers.

Stimson's Warning
In his statement before the house military affairs committee, supporting the Burke-Wadsworth compulsory military service bill, Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson said that if certain contingencies are resolved in Germany's favor, Hitler will control a navy that will outrank our fleet in all classes of fighting craft. In addition, Hitler will "outrank us in shipbuilding in a ratio of at least six to one." The contingencies referred to include the defeat of Great Britain, acquisition of her fleet, and control of her ship-building facilities.

SEWING CIRCLE MEETS

The Cannel City Church of God Sewing Circle held its regular meeting Friday, August 9, at the home of Mrs. M. H. Ferguson. The president, Mrs. Stamper, was unable to attend, and Mrs. J. D. Benton was in charge. Opening hymns were "I Love to Tell the Story" and "Wonderful Words of Life," with Mrs. Clyde Wells at the piano. The hostess read the 15th chapter of Proverbs for the devotional. Miss Bertha Lacy led in prayer. The work on the quilt top was then taken up and progressed nicely. A social hour followed in which the hostess served refreshments of sandwiches, cakes, and coolade.

Present were Mrs. J. D. Benton, Mrs. W. R. Patrick, Mrs. Marcum Bach, Mrs. Earle Haney, Mrs. J. W. Benton, Mrs. M. G. Dunigan, Mrs. Malcolm Walton, Miss Bertha Lacy, Mrs. Lida Stacy, Mrs. Charles Briscoe, Mrs. Clyde Wells, Mrs. Lonnie Patrick, and Misses Lula Dunigan, Melovoe, Wanda, and Dolores Ferguson, Alice Rose Haney, and Coleen Patrick. The meeting adjourned about four o'clock to meet August 23 with Mrs. J. D. Benton.

"THE WAY I SEE IT"

By Rev. Kenneth Clay

Just recently in one of the central Kentucky towns in the early afternoon a man came dragging his wife up one of the back streets too intoxicated to walk by herself. The expression on his face was that of embarrassment and disgust. She was swearing and struggling in a desperate effort to get loose to return to the place from which she had just been taken. In the same city and at the same time, perhaps, another woman gets on the bus. Soon after the bus starts off for its destination with a full load, this woman lights up a cigarette, blowing her smoke and ashes into the faces of the innocent passengers, and the language which she utters was most obscene.

Before many months had passed these two women were brought together in a certain social gathering. Their conversation sifted down to something like this: "I am becoming more and more disgusted with the civilization in which we live. In reading my history and listening to the conversations of my parents and grandparents they tell me that in generations gone by women were held in high esteem. Why, several centuries ago women were almost placed on pedestals. They were honored, respected, and almost worshiped. But, today things are different."

The other woman in reply said: "Yes, men have lost their respect for women, and I am almost afraid to travel by myself any more. Why is it that men can't treat us with the same respect and admiration today as they did in the years that have gone by? Things once held so sacred are thrown away as though they had no value." Just then they were interrupted by their husbands and the conversation came to an abrupt close.

If women expect men to respect them with the same respect that they did in centuries gone by, they must demand that respect by holding up and maintaining a high standard just as they once did. The higher the standard the greater the respect, and likewise, the lower the standard the less the respect. As long as women live on the same plane holding the same standard as men they should not expect to be held in a higher esteem. Life is a unified whole and women cannot expect to live a double, or two-phased life. If they want to be respected as women in the light of tradition then they must live as becomes the feminine sex from the traditional standpoint. But, if they expect to live as men then they will have to grow accustomed to being treated as such.

One of the most beautiful things in God's creation is a clean, moral, attractive, pretty girl or woman. Beauty can be judged from many standpoints, figure, personality, intelligence, etc. And the most deplorable thing in the world is an immoral, immodest, sloppy, filthy, obscene woman. God does not hold two standards, one for men and one for women, but the preservation of a high cultured civilization, and the exalted traditional reverence and respect for womanhood does.

FARMERS' COLUMN

Drink Milk for Health

An adult should drink a pint of milk daily and a child two pints, according to health standards of home economists at the university of Kentucky college of agriculture. Thus a family of two adults and three children need eight pints or a gallon of milk daily. A good milk cow should produce two to four gallons daily, or enough to supply milk and some cream and butter for a family of five. However, since a cow must be dry a part of the year, a farm family should have at least two milk cows.

A recent survey showed that families able to afford good milk, fruits, meat, and eggs have less illness.

Ear Clipping Gets Worms

Worm infestation in corn can be reduced as much as 80 percent by a method in use at the horticultural department of the Kentucky college of agriculture.

The process is to cut the ends of the ears, as far back as "brownish" substance caused by worms appears, four to five days after pollination. Drop the ends in a basket, and burn to destroy the worms and eggs. Corn 90 percent infested often has been saved almost entirely by this method.

This method is applicable especially by the home gardener, who will not mind having the ends of the ears snipped. However, selling the corn thus treated has been tried successfully. Commercial users apparently do not object to it.

Dusting the corn with insecticides has not been found successful so far, it is reported. Not merely must the dusting be repeated every three to four days, but unless the exact time is found to get the worms, it becomes useless.

A detailed report of the new method, covering the college's work on the subject for the past three years, has been prepared by Dr. E. M. Emmert of the horticultural department. Copies of the report may be obtained by writing to Dr. Emmert.

Can Best Peaches Only

When peaches are plentiful and the price is right, many homemakers can't wait for winter eating. Along in December the canned peaches are more than welcome as a breakfast fruit, in salads, and in all kinds of desserts.

"The quality of canned peaches depends largely on the quality of the fresh peaches used," explains Mrs. Pearl J. Haak of the Kentucky college of agriculture. "Canning does not improve the quality of the fruit, and only the best peaches are suitable."

To make sure of the quality, look for peaches that are firm and ripe, but not soft. Avoid those that are badly bruised, those with brown spots of decay, and those that are uneven in shape and have punctures made by worms. The pink blush which is found on many varieties of peaches tells little about the quality, but the rest of the color on the outside of the peach is important. If this background color is green, the peach may ripen with a poor flavor or it may become shriveled. However the peach is a safe buy if this green color has changed to a yellow or whitish-yellow color.

Select peaches which are ripe, but not soft. Before preparing, make a syrup, or thinner if desired, allowing one cup of sugar for each quart jar. Add one cracked peach pit to each quart of syrup, boil 5 minutes and strain. Immerse peaches in boiling water until skins slip easily, peel, stone and cut in halves or slice. Place in salted water (1 tablespoon of salt to one quart of water) to prevent discoloration.

In using the hot pack method, place peaches carefully in kettle of syrup at simmering point and hold at that temperature until heated through. Pack in jars at once, placing the halves in overlapping layers, conserve sides open, with blossom end facing glass. Fill containers with boiling syrup, seal and process quart and pint jars for 30 minutes in water bath if fruit is firm and hard, or 20 minutes if it is ripe and tender. Process No. 2 and No. 3 tin cans for 15 minutes.

ATTEND CONVENTION

Wednesday morning, August 7, F. C. Meadows, president of the Morgan county high school chapter of Future Farmers of America, and Walter Oldfield, local reporter, left for Louisville as delegates with their adviser, Roy Nickell, teacher of Vocational Agriculture in the Morgan county high school, to represent the local chapter in the eleventh state convention which was held in the Kentucky hotel Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

Besides attending the convention, the boys visited WHAS, radio station, Courier-Journal and Times office, and many other places of educational interest. Saturday morning they motored on to Hardinsburg to the state future farmers' camp. Here the boys spent Saturday, Sunday, and Monday, after which they returned home, sight-seeing on the way back. While at camp the boys had an enjoyable time with future farmer boys from other parts of the state. The boys had an opportunity in training for leadership, besides attending Sunday school, etc. They participated in swimming, softball, tennis, ping pong, shuffleboard, horseshoe pitching, volleyball and many other games. They reported a good time which was also very educational. They state they hope they can make the trip next year.

TRAINING FOR NATIONAL GUARD

The only reason that we do not require an army of two or three million men thoroughly trained is the inability of Germany, Italy and Japan to attack us. They are rendered impotent by the combined British and American navies. Once either navy is destroyed the bars are down. One does not have to know that the dictator nations will attack the United States before believing that our fighting men should be trained. Already we know that modern warfare requires expert fighters. It is an art that cannot be picked up with the speed with which one shoulders a musket.

Admitting the possibility that the British may be beaten in the present war, it seems to us, places upon this nation the duty of being prepared for an attack that might be launched against us. If the British fleet is put out of commission, we know that our present fleet is insufficient to prevent foes from attacking this hemisphere in one ocean or the other.

So long as our navy is not large enough to insure us against an attack, regardless of the combination against us, common sense requires that we prepare a second line of defense. The army is this second line. To be worth anything it must contain trained soldiers, with experience in the ways of modern warfare. This cannot be gleaned from books while national guardsmen live at home. It must come from actual experience in the field.

Afterthought

"The silver medal of the National Canine Defense League has been awarded to Coast Guardsman William Thomas for descending a 300-foot cliff and saving the life of a dog which was trapped by the incoming tide at Hurst Point, near Portlock. A BUILDING BOOM

Beginning in the spring of 1939 and continued in 1940, the present building boom is still going fine and showing no signs of abatement. It is a boom to be proud of and to be appreciated. Few counties in this state can boast of such a building program. Four hundred new structures in Morgan county, dotting the hills and hollows, built of wood and concrete, found in town and country, sponsored by the WPA and the state board of health, and erected by one out of every seven families in the county.

What is this building boom? It is the WPA sanitary privy project, a project for the sole purpose of improving the sanitation around our homes and controlling communicable diseases, especially typhoid and dysentery. The actual value of this project in money is small in comparison to the resulting better health. This will be seen when we realize that one person out of every ten who becomes sick with typhoid will die of the disease.

According to the officials of the state board of health and the Morgan county health department the WPA privy they have done on this project. In their estimation it is one of the best possible community undertakings in the entire nation.

A building boom? Sure, and let's keep it booming.

"FLOCKING TO COLORS"

Columbus, Ohio, August 5.—"Young men between the ages of 18 and 35 in the states of Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky, and West Virginia are literally flocking to the colors. That is why the fifth corps army area 'went over the top' before the final day on its July requisition for recruits." Colonel S. G. Talbot, adjutant general of the fifth corps area, reported today.

"We are already working on the war department preparedness requisition no. 3 which asks for 7,581 men to be recruited from the four states of this corps area. Already, we have 1,090 accepted on this requisition," he said.

The fifth corps area is proud of the caliber of the young men it has been enlisting in the United States army. A great percentage of them are college or high school graduates who are interested in obtaining the "good jobs at good pay for good men in the U. S. army."

Today there are thousands of openings in scores of different trade classifications in the army. Recruits may be detailed to army schools for several months. When they have completed the training course, they have been eligible for specialist or non-commissioned officer ratings. They get their full army wages, food, clothing, medical and dental attention while going to school.

The bombing raids that have been launched by the British against German objectives are apparently doing considerable damage to Germany but it is an open question whether German planes are not doing more damage in Great Britain.

The general bombing of England has now been followed by the use of dive-bombing tactics against restricted targets, such as specified ports like Dover. The purpose of these attacks is to destroy the facilities of the ports in order to prevent the import of material and food that must be brought into England if the British continue the war.

Reports from German sources assert that the purpose is being attained and that it is only a question of time before British ports will be unable to handle the shipping upon which life in the British Isles depends. London, as might be expected, denies that any serious situation has arisen but, then, no one would expect London to admit such a catastrophe as long as it could be denied.

From neutral sources comes information that German industrial plants have been greatly damaged by British raids, that great ports like Hamburg have been wrecked and that the morale of German citizens has been shattered by incessant air raid warnings. Berlin, of course, denies these reports, making light of the damage inflicted by British raiders.

There is no way for a neutral observer, 3,000 miles away, to know the truth as to the damage done by the raids. It is natural to believe that it is much greater than either side admits. The bomb from the sky is a destructive terror and it remains to be seen which nation, and what people, will give way under the impact of the new weapon of war.

PERSHING WOULD AID BRITISH

General John J. Pershing has advised that the United States safeguard its own freedom by making available to the British or Canadian governments at least fifty over-age destroyers.

Warning that tomorrow might be too late, the commander-in-chief of our World War armies insisted that we "shall be failing in our duty to America" if we fail to "help save the British fleet during the next few weeks and months."

"More than half the world is ruled by men who despise the American idea and have sworn to destroy it," says the general, who adds that "only the British are left to defend democracy and liberty in Europe."

Gen. Pershing's plea is not based upon any desire to help Great Britain but upon the idea that "by sending help to the British" we can "still help to keep war on the other side of the Atlantic ocean." He solemnly warns that "tomorrow may be forever too late to keep war from the Americas. Tomorrow may be the last time when by measures short of war we can still prevent war."

He disabuses Americans of the idea that "another expeditionary force" may set sail for Europe, assuring them that "no one is considering it" and adds his opinion that "it would be absolute folly."

The gist of his argument is that the time needed to build our own defenses "may be lengthened if we have the courage to make the small but important contribution which is still within our power toward the sustaining of the British defense."

We have "an immense reserve of destroyers left over from the other war, and in a few months the British fleet will have a large number of destroyers of their own. The most critical time," he says, "is the next few weeks and months. If there is anything we can do to help save the British fleet during that time, we shall be failing in our duty to America if we do not do it."

Good Citizenship in School Life
A pupil is not a good citizen when he is selfish, when the chances are that he will not make a very good citizen when he grows up. A good citizen should be able to take his place in society and conduct himself so that he will be a credit to his community.

The following list contains many valuable hints to boys and girls if they wish to be good citizens:

Be neat—Poor clothes are no disgrace but all can be clean.

Learn good English—Nothing shows poorer training like poor English. Establish good speech habits.

Clean teeth, bathe, comb hair, clean nails.

Be prompt—The person who makes a habit of being late will never catch up with the world.

Learn good sportsmanship—No poor sport ever went far in life. Learn to lose as well as win. Always be fair in all play and work—Never consider cheating in any form. While you may win a game or pass an examination by cheating, you may be sure that you are the loser.

The Morgan county board of education wishes to thank Olin W. Davis, superintendent of Dayton schools, for permission to use "Kentucky Civics" as a source book for information. Mr. Davis wrote this Kentucky Civics for Kentucky schools. The board of education heartily recommends Kentucky Civics to the teachers of Morgan county.—Ova O. Haney, Supt., Morgan County Schools.

BOB JONES' COMMENTS

"It would be an unspeakable tragedy for Great Britain to be defeated in the present war. That is the ideal of a missionary from Africa whom it was the privilege of the writer to meet at a Bible conference recently. According to this missionary, there are 27,600 Protestant missionaries in the world and 12,400 of them work under the British flag. There are 1,500 working under the French flag and only 15 under the Italian flag. I have not checked the figures, but I am inclined to think that the intelligent missionary who gave them to me, knows what he is talking about.

England, like all other nations, has blood on her record and has, as other nations, been guilty of many sins in God's sight, but England has stood for many years a friend of missionary work and has stressed the value of God's Word written in public buildings and many other places. "The Lord knoweth them that are His," was chiseled on the tomb of the unknown soldier. After reading the address delivered recently by Lord Halifax, I found myself praying with tears in my eyes for England. There has as far as the writer knows, never been a more Christian address given by a statesman in any country at any time in the history of the world.

I have traveled in many lands, and in America I have many personal friends from Germany and from other countries, but I cannot help feeling that it would be to the best interest of even Germany for England to win this war.

I have a feeling that this baptism of blood may drive England to her knees, and that out of all the horror and tragedy of suffering there may come a world-wide revival. God knows best. He has made of one blood all nations of men who dwell on the earth, but He has fixed the bounds of their habitation. However the war turns out, we Christians have nothing to fear. "Our citizenship is in heaven." We shall be safe if all nations are destroyed. "The foundation of God standeth sure, for the Lord knoweth them that are His."

It may be that we are really, as many Bible scholars believe, in the close of the age. England may go down, Germany and Italy may come out victorious. Jesus may soon come back to receive His own. No one can back to receive His own. No one can know positively what will be the outcome of the present struggle. We Christians walk by faith, and not by sight. We do not ask to see. The world says, seeing is believing. To Christians believing is seeing. This does not mean that God permits us in this world to see every detail of His plan for the future. It does mean that there are always holes in every cloud which hangs over our head through which we may see His blessed face. There are no guns that man can make which will sound so loud that we shall not be able to hear Him say, "I am with you always, even until the end of the age," and "Behold, I am coming quickly, and my reward is with Me to give every man according as his work shall be."

Parliamentary Practice
The meeting had dragged on interminably. The president was anxious to leave, but there were still a few members who insisted on continuing until the matter in question was settled, although it was apparent that no progress was being made.

At last he could stand it no longer. "All those in favor of an adjournment," he announced, "may signify by getting up and leaving—opposed, the same!"
